NATURAL DISASTER PREPAREDNESS

Civil Engineer Readiness Unit
225 Rosamond Blvd.
(661) 277-4433

Earthquakes are the primary type of natural disaster most likely to occur at Edwards. Despite being located between the first and third largest fault lines in California, the San Andreas and the Garlock respectively, the base has no historical record of ever sustaining damage due to an earthquake. Occasionally during the spring rainy season, the base may be subject to flash flooding. Both earthquakes and flash flooding give little or no warning and can compromise the well being of the community, the ability to operate and even the structural integrity of homes and buildings. Strong winds are also common and have been known to cause local damage.

The Civil Engineer Readiness Unit suggests the following steps be taken to prepare for a major earthquake:

Develop a family plan

- Decide where your family can reunite if separated.
- Be familiar with the safe spots in each room so that you can seek protection under sturdy tables and desks or against walls. Avoid danger spots such as near windows, mirrors, hanging objects and tall, unsecured furniture.
- Know where the gas, water and electricity turnoff sites are and how to shut them off.
- Secure water heaters and appliances.
- Maintain a three-day emergency food and water supply. Create a survival kit, including a flashlight, portable battery-operated radio, extra batteries, prescription medicine, first aid supplies, clothing and sanitation needs. A small kit should also be placed in each vehicle.
- Keep current on first aid and cardiopulmonary resuscitation skills.

After the earthquake

- Check yourself and those around you for injuries. Don't move seriously injured persons unless they are in immediate danger.
- Check utility leaks and broken electrical and sewage lines. Survey your house for cracks and signs of damage.
- Check water and food supplies. Remember emergency water can be found in water heaters, melted ice cubes, the toilet tank and canned vegetables.
- Use a portable radio for instructions and news reports.
- Do not drive your car unless necessary. Roads need to be clear for emergency vehicles. The secret to success in surviving a natural disaster is the ability to plan. The Civil Engineering Readiness Unit provides earthquake information to the base populace upon request.

Recreation

Services programs are a critical part of the Air Force readiness equation. These programs contribute to readiness and productivity by promoting fitness, esprit de corps, and quality of life for Air Force people. Services special mission of providing morale, welfare and recreation programs on the installation ensures the mental and physical well-being of Air Force members, their families and civilians. These programs include fitness and sports, libraries, community centers, parks, child development and youth activities, pools, bowling, clubs, golf and a variety of food and beverage operations. A portion of the profits earned through use fees and charges for Services programs are returned to the community by way of basewide special events such as Summer Bash, Fall Festival, Holiday Party, Concerts in the Park and many others held throughout the year. Services also returns profits to the community by providing funds for units parties and picnics and limited support for retirements, memorials, awards ceremonies and change of command ceremonies. Services provides community support to some non-Services programs such as monitoring and providing oversight to the Private Organization Program and unit fund-raising activities on the installation. Services programs reach out and support every individual on the installation in some manner and are an integral part of the Air Force mission. # SONIC BOOMS

The F-22 is an air-superiority fighter with improved capability over current Air Force aircraft.

A distinguishing characteristic of Edwards is the large “booms” first heard here in 1947. Those booms are known as sonic booms. A sonic boom sounds similar to thunder and is caused by an object moving faster than sound; about 750 mph at sea level. An aircraft traveling through the atmosphere continuously produces air pressure waves similar to the water waves produced by a ship’s bow. When an aircraft exceeds the speed of sound, these pressure waves combine and form shock waves, which travel forward from the generation or “release” point.

As an aircraft flies at supersonic speeds, it is continually generating shock waves, dropping sonic booms along its flight path, similar to someone dropping objects from a moving vehicle. The sound heard on the ground as a sonic boom is the sudden onset and release of pressure after the build up by the shock wave or “peak overpressure.” Duration of a sonic boom is brief and is less than a second—100 milliseconds—for most fighter-sized aircraft.
